The former finding was consistent with previous work showing women being more likely than men to develop psychosis following some traumas 76The latter finding was consistent with previous work which has found men being more likely than women to experience psychosis following cannabis use However, our finding that socio-emotional and somatic problems were more common antecedents of voice-hearing in women was a novel finding. There is only a few times i got dizzy or nauseous during a fast this rarely happens to me ...i reflect back wonder how much of it was mental?.

All these questions would obviously suggest themselves in the course of the long life of an intellectually robust man like Eatter-mann. When I read of the mental ascent and descent that happens in the course of the sema ritual, I thought immediately of the Western Christian mystics who emphasized this ascent the desire to reach a transcendent, liminal state, poised between this life and the life to come: that eternal quest for that place where, as Augustine said, my soul is floodlit by light which space cannot contain, where there is a sound that time cannot seize and where there is a bond of union that no satiety can .
